benefits in the survey such as paid time off three quarters of workers state that the benefits package an employer offers prospective workers is extremely 32 percent or very 44 percent important in their decision to accept or reject a job nevertheless 34 percent are only somewhat satisfied with the benefits offered by their current employer and 22 percent are not satisfied eighty six percent of workers report that employment based health insurance is extremely or very important far more than for any other workplace benefit workers identify lower cost compared with purchasing benefits on their own and choice as strong advantages of voluntary benefits however they are split with respect to their comfort in having their employer choose their benefits provider and think the possibility that they may have to pay the full cost of any voluntary benefits is a strong or moderate disadvantage the pdf for the above title published in the november 2014 issue of ebri notes also contains the fulltext of another november 2014 ebri notes article abstracted on ssrn the gap between expected and actual retirement evidence from longitudinal data
